

School Safety Information Sharing Program

Statewide Terrorism & Intelligence Center
2200 South Dirksen Parkway, Suite 238
Springfield, Illinois 62703

Illinois' Statewide Terrorism & Intelligence Center (STIC) serves the criminal justice and public safety communities as a centralized repository for the collection, analysis and dissemination of homeland security information. One of the goals of STIC is to promote mutually collaborative communications, working relationships and information sharing between the private and public sectors.

The School Safety Information Sharing (SSIS) Program is an on-going illustration of these efforts. The program was initiated in March 2013 and was designed as a cooperative engagement to share vital, For Official Use Only (FOUO) information, and ensure timely dissemination of K-12 school and college protection guidance and intelligence with those designated as 'need to know.' 'Need to know' is established when the prospective recipient requires access to specific information in order to fulfill their duties protecting K-12 school and college facilities, property, students, faculty and staff. Law enforcement officers who are assigned to schools and campuses may receive information classified as Law Enforcement Sensitive (LES).

By definition, FOUO is a designation applied to unclassified sensitive information that may be exempt from mandatory release to the public under the Freedom of Information Act (FOIA)¹. FOUO applies to information of a sensitive nature, not otherwise categorized by statute or regulation, the unauthorized disclosure of which could adversely impact a person's privacy or welfare, the conduct of federal or state programs, or other programs or operations essential to the national interest. Information designated as FOUO is not automatically exempt from disclosure under Illinois Sunshine Laws². Information requested by the public under a FOIA request must still be reviewed on a case-by-case basis. Information included in this category shall include, but is not limited to, information that:

- Is developed by extracting information previously classified at a higher level;
- Pertains to sensitive critical infrastructure that cannot be released to the general public;
- Pertains to sensitive homeland security information that is not releasable to the general public; or
- Pertains to emergency response information that cannot be released to the public

FOUO information may be hand delivered, sent via facsimile, or sent through electronic mail. Dissemination of FOUO information shall be limited to agencies with homeland security, domestic security, critical infrastructure, or emergency response duties with a valid critical mission need and right to know, except in exigent circumstances.

Information collected and disseminated by STIC with an LES designator is unclassified information of a sensitive nature which may not be disseminated outside the scope of law enforcement personnel and is exempt from mandatory release to the public under FOIA. Access to and dissemination of some LES information is restricted by statute, regulation, or policy. Dissemination of LES information beyond the law enforcement community is strictly prohibited^{3,4} and could result in civil and/or criminal penalties for the individual disseminating the information beyond the allowed scope⁵.

Applicants must have a vested interest in protecting K-12 school and college facilities, property, students, faculty and staff. The information shared can pertain to physical security, asset protection, cybercrimes intrusion, threats, suspicious activities, operations, crisis management or emergency preparedness perspectives. Also, through their official duties, persons that require and share information from an all hazards perspective should apply. Those individuals involved in consulting, sales or the installation of security products must submit a comprehensive memorandum explaining how information provided to or received from STIC will be used FOUO.

Participant access will be enabled by STIC following the validation and the approval of applications. Personal information provided to STIC will be used solely for the purpose of individual identification to meet internal security requirements. There is no fee to participate in this important information sharing forum.

In addition to the internal security requirements, a signed non-disclosure form is required from each applicant prior to receiving SSIS membership and program access. This protects the shared information and benefits all parties through required protocols and policies.
